A New Home in Your Future? Stay Informed on Housing Trends!

Q. Hi Sue, We are considering buying our first home, we would be grateful for any advice that you can provide. Thank you.
A. Congratulations and please check out each of the below, these are exceptionally helpful:

Home Buying Tips to help keep you informed:

1. Choose a Realtor and establish a relationship.
2. Request demographic data from your local Chamber of Commerce and Better Business Bureau.
3. Visit www.census.gov for a variety of demographic and business information. You can search by zip code, occupation and industry, or an entire variety of other criteria. It's free but will take a bit of time to learn how to use in order to find the valuable data.
4. Sign up for one of HUD's (Housing and Urban Development) newsletters and market data reports at www.hud.gov. Most are free and provide superb insight into national and state trends and forecasting reports.
5. Keep your pulse on new home construction by visiting the National Association of Homebuilders web site.

Q. Dear Sue, In your experience Sue, do you have any suggestions in how to reduce the trauma when moving children?
A. Moving to a new home can be traumatic for children, especially when the move takes them away from friends and familiar places.

If a move is in your future, help ease your children's worries and fears by involving them in the moving plans:
• Allow your children to pack their own toys and books.
• Allow your children to get acquainted with the neighborhood during the construction phase if building a new home.
• Show your children photographs of the new house, their bedrooms, the neighborhood and their new school if they won't see the new home until move-in day.
• Take memorable photographs of the old home, friends and special places for your children to take with them.
• Consult the new teachers regarding your children's new curriculum and any social adjustments.
• Involve your children in the arranging and decorating of their new rooms.

Thank You Sue
